

JAN 13 2009

MOLLY C. DWYER, CLERK
U.S. COURT OF APPEALS

NOT FOR PUBLICATION

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS

FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

AMMAR HALLOUM,

Petitioner,

v.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR;
INTEL CORPORATION,

Respondents.

No. 06-71902

LABR No. 04-068
OALJ No. 2003-SOX-7

MEMORANDUM*

On Petition for Review of an Order of the Department of Labor

Submitted October 10, 2008

Before: SKOPIL, BEEZER and HALL, Circuit Judges.

Ammar Halloum seeks review of a final decision issued by the Department of Labor’s (DOL) Administrative Review Board (ARB), dismissing his “whistle-blowing” complaint under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 (SOX), 18 U.S.C. § 1514A. We affirm.

* This disposition is not appropriate for publication and is not precedent except as provided by 9th Cir. R. 36-3.

 The panel unanimously finds this case suitable for decision without oral argument. See Fed. R. App. P. 34(a)(2).

Halloum asserts he was subjected to adverse employment actions by Intel Corporation (Intel) because he notified the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) that Intel used fraudulent and inappropriate accounting practices. A subsequent investigation cleared Intel of any wrongdoing. Nonetheless, ARB concluded that Halloum established a prima facie case of retaliation that shifted the burden to Intel to establish, “by clear and convincing evidence, that it would have taken the same unfavorable personnel action against Halloum in the absence of his protected activity.”

We agree with ARB that Intel satisfied that burden and thus did not violate SOX. The administrative record demonstrates that Halloum did not integrate himself into Intel’s workforce or perform up to Intel’s expectations. ARB specifically noted evidence indicating that Halloum missed meetings, was frequently absent from work, failed to perform duties expected of a group leader, failed to understand Intel’s business operations, did not meet the job expectations of his grade, failed to comprehend Intel’s accounting system, and forced Intel to shift his work responsibilities to other group leaders. As ARB indicated, [t]hese were sufficient, non-discriminatory reasons to seek his termination as an employee” and accordingly, Intel “would have taken the same action in the absence of Halloum’s protected activity.” These findings are supported by substantial evidence and therefore the dismissal of Halloum's complaint was not arbitrary, capricious, or an abuse of discretion. See 18 U.S.C. § 1514A(b)(2)(A) (incorporating by reference the standards of review of the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706)).

AFFIRMED.